president and
CFO

What was the No. 1 thing you did in 2021 that spurred growth?

We pivoted our focus to health care staffing from IT staffing. COVID offered us opportunities in the areas of contact tracing and vaccination with government agencies around the country.

What was the biggest challenge of 2021?

Pandemic-related health issues of employees and work from home impacted the business as we noticed low motivation and productivity initially among some. Safety downtown was a big issue as employees refused to come in to work. We customized our processes and made simple changes like emailing gift cards, mailing gift packages, and saw significant improvement.

What's the forecast for your business in 2022?

We expect similar growth as in 2021. Suspected Russian cyber attacks, ironically, offer new business opportunities.
